Dundee faces south on a high ridge of land overlooking Old Frederick Road, surrounded by some 23 acres of pasture and woodland on the northwest corner of Rogers Avenue and Old Frederick Road, known as U.S. Route 144. It is one of two large, stone mansions located on this open wooded land between Rogers Avenue and Route 29.

Dundee is a five bay wide, one room deep, two and one half story high, hipped roof, granite block, Federal style, stone mansion with wide, brick chimneys inset into its east and west walls, and a three bay wide, one room deep, two and one half story high, hipped roof, granite block, stone, north wing, creating an L plan.

Dundee is a good example of vernacular stone architecture in Howard County, blending elements of the Federal style in its hipped roof and flat wooden cornice, decorated with a row of dentils with the revival styles of the mid-nineteenth century in its tall, Italianate, french doors on the north and south elevations of the main building block and in its Romanesque, interior design features, namely its roman arched, marble mantlepieces. Its stonework is representative of master craftsmen, featuring ashlar, granite block construction, projecting stone sills and flat stone lintels.

In 1871, Commodore Isaac Mayo, one of the four founders of the Annapolis Naval Academy, lived here with his wife, Sarah Bland Fitzhugh Mayo.

Dr. Thomas P. Temple, reputed to have been the personal physician of General Robert E. Lee, also made his home here.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Dundee faces south on a high ridge of land overlooking Old Frederick Road, surrounded by some 23 acres of pasture and woodland on the northwest corner of Rogers Avenue and Old Frederick Road, known as U.S. Route 144. It is one of two large, stone mansions located on this open wooded land between Rogers Avenue and Route 29.

Dundee is a five bay wide, one room deep, two and one half story high, hipped roof, granite block, Federal style, stone mansion with wide, brick chimneys inset into its east and west walls, and a three bay wide, one room deep, two and one half story high, hipped roof, granite block, stone, north wing, creating an L plan.

A flat, wooden cornice, decorated with a row of brackets, runs along the entire intersecting, hipped roof building.

Fenestration for the entire house is vertically aligned and proportionally scaled. First floor north and south windows for the main building block are tall, rectangular, two-two light casements, surmounted by two-light transoms, and flat, stone lintels and underlined by projecting stone sills. All the other windows for the stone house are rectangular, double-hung windows, holding six-over-six lights, surmounted by flat, stone lintels and underlined by projecting, flat stone sills.

SOUTH ELEVATION

Two wide, granite steps lead to the central, three bay wide, one story high, flat roofed, open porch, which is supported by four, square, wooden posts, held by arched brackets, which cover the central entrance bay and its flanking windows. The entrance is a three-three (with one-one lights) paneled, double, ractangular door, flanked by four vertical side lights, surmounted by a four-light transom and flat stone lintel.

The south elevation holds two flanking, first floor windows, similar to those already described, with five, second floor, vertically aligned, proportionally scaled, double-hung windows, holding six-over-six lights, similar to those already described.

Two gabled roof, pedimented, dormer windows also hold rectangular, double-hung windows, holding six-over-six lights.

The stone work on this elevation is particularly fine, featuring proportionally scaled, regularly cut granite blocks, with quoining at each corner of the building.

NORTH ELEVATION

Two, two-two light casement windows, similar to those described are placed in the two east bays of the north wall. They are vertically aligned to two second floor windows, similar to those second floor windows already described. central bay of the west wall is covered by the two story high, open porch, which runs along the east elevation of the north wing of the building. The central bay of the main building block holds a central north entrance, similar to that located in the central bay of the south facade. The two west bays are covered by the north wing, which in turn holds a further north addition, which is a two bay wide, three bay deep, one story high, shed roofed, frame addition. This has been constructed along the north wall of the north wing. The north wall of this latter addition holds a central, rectangular north entrance, surmounted by a projecting cornice and lintel and flanked by large, rectangular, twenty-light, picture windows.

EAST ELEVATION

No apertures appear on the east elevation of the main building block.

A two story high, open porch runs along three fourths of the east wall of the two and one half story high, intersecting, hipped roof, north wing. This porch is supported by three, square, wooden columns, held by scrolled brackets on the first and second floors, connected on the second floor by a wooden railing. The fourth quarter of the porch of the stone north wing (its north end bay), is fronted and enclosed by frame siding and holds an interior staircase.

The south end bay for the north wing holds a first and second floor entrance, entering onto the open porch. The first floor entrance is a six paneled, rectangular door, surmounted by a three light transom and flat stone lintel and flanked by four, vertical side lights. The first floor entrance is vertically aligned to a simpler rectangular, paneled, second floor entrance.

The two central bays for the east elevation of the north wing hold rectangular, double-hung, first and second floor windows, holding six-over-six lights, similar to those already described. A pedimented, gabled roof, dormer window is centered in the roofline of this east elevation. This elevation differs from the others for it is stuccoed and painted white.

The east elevation of the north wing's frame, one story high. addition holds two four-four light, rectangular, casement windows, surmounted by two light transoms.

WEST ELEVATION

The west elevation is a notable one. It is five bays in length, holding a central, first floor, six paneled, rectangular entrance door, surmounted by a one-light transom and flat, stone lintel. The stone work between this entrance and its vertically aligned, second floor window is different than that of the rest of the wall, appearing to be light colored fieldstone, rather than granite block.

The outline of a gable can be seen over the entrance, which marks the place for a gabled roof addition, which once extended west from this wall, or for a gabled roof entrance portico, previously placed here.

Two first and second floor windows rest on either side of this entrance. They are underlined by six light, horizontal, rectangular, cellar windows, surmounted, as the others, by flat stone lintels and underlined by projecting stone sills. A similar cellar window rests just north of the west entrance, while a cellar door replaces that located at the north end bay.

Two gable roof, dormer windows are placed at this elevation, holding rectangular, double-hung windows with six-over-six lights.

The west elevation of the frame north addition holds two, rectangular, four-four light, casement windows, surmounted by two-light transoms.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Dundee is a good example of vernacular stone architecture in Howard County, blending elements of the Federal style in its hipped roof and flat wooden cornice, decorated with a row of dentils, with the revival styles of the mid-nineteenth century in its tall, Italianate french doors on the north and south elevations of the main building block and in its Romanesque interior, roman arched, marble mantle-pieces. The stone work is representative of master craftsmen, featuring ashlar, granite block construction, projecting stone sills and flat stone lintels. In addition to its architectural merit, the building has been associated with several prestigeous Howard County families; the Earloughers, the Waters, the Blands, the Mayos, the Temples, the Rogers, the Hammonds and the Dorseys.

HISTORY AND SUPPORT

Dundee is one of two stone mansions (the other being HO-48 Woodlawn) located along the north side of Old Frederick Road, between Rogers Avenue and Route 29. Both of these large stone houses are located on what was once a large tract of land called Rebecca's Lot, and were constructed around the mid nineteenth century.

Of the two Dundee remains relatively unchanged, where Woodlawn has undergone alteration due to its use as a restaurant.

Dundee has also the integrity of its site and location at the corner of Rogers Avenue and Old Frederick Road, which tract was acquired by Francis Earlougher in 1832 from Joseph Lownes. The house is believed to have been constructed by Ignatius and Mary G. Waters, circa 1852. (The 1860 Martenet Map indicates Ignatius Waters, at this location)

Dundee stands today as an excellent example of this transitional architectural period, which bridges the Federal architectural period, occuring at the turn of the eighteenth century with the emerging revival styles, (the Italianate, the Romanesque Revival etcetera) which began in the 1830's and continued through the mid to late nineteenth century. Its building profile, (the scale, the hipped roof, the entrance porch) is representative of the Federal period, while its interior marble mantle pieces represent the Romanesque Revival period. These fireplaces may have replaced earlier, federal, frame mantle pieces, similar to the vistages of one found in the barn by the present owners.

Historically, this house has been singificant in the area of the military, being associated with at least two military families, the Mayo and Temple families. Very little has presently been discovered in regard to the families of Joseph Lownes or Francis Earloupher. We know that Francis Earloupher was married to Rebecca, A. F. Earlougher who, in 1849, inherited Dundee and other real estate from Francis Earloupher, and that by 1852, Rebecca had married John Porter and sold some property to Ignatious Waters. Ignatious and Mary G. Waters lived here until 1871, when the house and 102 acres was conveyed to Sarah Bland Fitzhugh Mayo, whose father served as Chancelor of Maryland. She married Commodore Isaac W. Mayo, who was important in the military history of the United States. Commodore Mayo came from Mayo Neck in Anne Arundel County, distinguishing himself in the service of his Country and becoming one of the four founders of the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis. According to local historians, Commodore Mayo wrote to President Lincoln, protesting the firing by Union troops on confederate civilian demonstrators in Baltimore and in his letter withdrew his right to all retirement funds. recounted that, not only was this granted but that his sword 'was also taken away from him. The Mayos remained at Dundee for only six years, relocating at Mayo Neck in Anne Arundel In 1877, Dundee became the home of another distinguished military man, Dr. Thomas P. Temple, who married Mary Johnson and acquired Dundee with some 54 acres of land for $12,000. Temple served in the Confederate Army as a physician during the Civil War and is reputed to have been General Robert E. Lee's personal physician. A letter of commendation to Thomas Temple by General Lee is held by Mrs. Roberta Adams of the Ten Oaks Nursery. Dundee has also been significant in the field of education. By 1893, John G. Rogers, who lived at nearby Woodlawn, had acquired Dundee for $3,900.00 at a public sale. It was, at about this time, that Dundee became a boarding school, with newspaper articles reputed to have been written on its history and significance as one of the first "integrated" (boys and girls) boarding schools on the east coast. Both Lelia Rogers, and her brother, John Rogers tramped over the meadow land, between their home at Woodlawn and Dundee, to attend school. Since Lelia Rogers was circa 80 years old in 1973, we know that Dundee was still operating at the turn of the century. The Rogers-Hammond-Dorsey family kept Dundee until 1943, when Mr. Harry S. Elklof acquired the property and some four years later Marcella and Harold Hallman.

In conclusion, Dundee is an outstanding Howard County landmark of historic and architectural merit with significance in the fields of education and the military.
