This frame and stone duplex faces south on Old Columbia Pike (MD 987).

The eastern half is a 2-story 2-bay stone house with massive granite sills and quoins. Windows have 2/2 sash, and the door is in the right (east) bay, with a 1-light transom. It has a hip-roofed porch with chamfered posts. There is a shed-roofed frame addition on the rear.

The western half is frame, with two modern 6/6 windows on the 2nd floor, and two on the first floor flanking the central door. There is a shed-roofed front porch with chamfered posts and corner brackets. The west gable end has two small 2/2 attic windows.

The building has three chimneys, one within the west gable end, one in the center between the two halves, and one flush with the east gable end. All chimneys are brick, including the portion above the stone east gable end.
