Facing north on the south side of Main Street in Ellicott City, this three-story, three-bay stone commercial building has a flush brick chimney in its east gable end, and once with a small 1-light window in the north side of the attic of its frame west gable end. This small window has been removed. The first floor once had two entrances, one apparently to the floors above. This entrance was in the west bay, and has been replaced with a shop window. The stairway now comes down from the second floor and makes a turn into the shop itself. The other three bays consist of a central entrance with a 1-light transom flanked by large glass shop windows. There is a heavy modillioned cornice between the first and second floors. The second and third floors have three 6/6 sash windows each, with granite lintels. On all three of these floors, the windows are closer to the west end of the building than the east.
