Section 7. Description

Condition: Excellent, altered
Date: c.1855

This dwelling, recorded as Kyne's Store in the initial inventory, faces south on the north side of Main Street and is flanked by the tri-gabled dwelling at 5764 Main on the west and HO-368, Boyle's Tavern on the east. The two story three bay side gabled structure has been heavily modernized on the exterior. The frame structure is clad in vinyl siding while the side gabled roof is sheathed in asphalt shingles. All of the windows in the house are vinyl replacements. A large interior end chimney is located on the eastern wall of the structure and it has either been extensively repointed or entirely rebuilt. A large rear addition may be relatively early; the addition is actually four bays wide (one wider than the front portion of the house) and one room deep and is capped by a gable roof parallel to the one on the front of the house.

On the first story of the front façade is found the only major alteration since the 1970's inventory was completed. A window in the center bay has been converted into an entry door in the last 30 years. The original entry door, four panel with two long arched panels above two short rectangular ones, in the left bay is still in place. The window in the right bay is very tall – nearly floor to ceiling – and it is unclear when this enlargement took place. On the second story, the left most bay is occupied by a window with a jib door beneath it while the other two bays have plain windows. The front façade is decorated with fixed red vinyl shutters. A front porch that has been almost entirely redone also adorns this façade. The floor of the full width porch is stone but the supports are currently vinyl Doric columns. The first story has no balustrade but an iron balustrade currently runs around the perimeter of the flat roof at the second story level.

The interior of the building was not surveyed but as viewed from the front door, it appears to be more intact than the exterior. Originally a side hall plan, the shop occupied the front room on the first floor and double doors allowed it to be closed off from the family's space. The original stair is still in place along the western wall and boasts fine scroll decoration on the stair ends. Wood floors, high ceilings, plaster walls, columns, reeded door trim with bulls eye corner blocks, and a decorative mantle are all intact.

KYNE'S STORE

mid-eighteen hundreds

Elkridge

Private

Patrick Kyne, one of three Kyne's who came to America in the early 1800's, bought this property in 1839. Used as a grocery and confectionery store in the mid to late 1800's, it is presently a well-maintained residence whose store front has been altered to accommodate its large first floor living room windows. It is a three story gabled roof wood frame building three bays wide and three bays deep with brick chimney on its north wall.

Symmetrical fenestration, proportionally scaled from first to third floors, punctuates the facade, while a wide flat-roofed porch with wrought iron ballustrade supported by four fluted doric columns runs along the facade of the first floor. The rectangular east entrance lies in the north bay and is surmounted by a two-lite transom.

In 1839 the property on Main Street was bought by Miss Kyne's grandfather. The present structure located on the west side of Main street south of the intersection of Main Street and Levering Avenue, is a three story wood frame building resting on a stone foundation three bays wide and three bays deep with brick chimney on the north wall and crowned by a gabled roof. Symmetrical fenestration, proportionally scaled from first to third floors, punctuates the facade. The windows are double-hung with two-over-two lights on the first floor and six-over-six lights on the second floor. Two third floor windows with six-over-six lites are located on the north wall within the gabled roof line. Green wooden vented shutters decorate the white frame structure. Originally a store porch ran the width of the west elevation facing Main Street. It is now a flat roofed porch with wrought iron ballustrade supported by four doric fluted columns. The other significant architectural element of the house, a rectangular entrance door, is located on the north bay and surmounted by a two-lite transom. The north wall holds a first floor double casement window on the west bay with six-over-six lites. Four steps and a wrought iron railing lead to the entrance door composed of fifteen lites lying west of the window. A back porch on the west elevation is now closed in with louvered windows and screens. Five wooden steps flanked by a wooden railing lead to the north entrance of the porch. An early addition to the house lies on the west wall, its gabled roof running north-south resting beside the gabled roof of the original structure which also runs north-south. It is four bays wide and one bay deep with a first and second floor double-hung window located on its west wall with two-over-two lites and green shutters. The interior has been altered when it was recycled for residential use only. Its interior white wood paneling and spacious living room is lighted by the large windows already described. A lovely hand carved Gothic marble clock sits on the mantle of the north wall which Patrick Costalay of Galway County, Ireland, a relative, carved.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Kyne's store is of significance both historically and architecturally.

Historically, the property was bought in 1839 by Patrick Kyne, one of three Kyne's who came to America in the early 1800's. (Peter, brother of Patrick and a first cousin).

Peter Kyne, brother of Patrick had eight children, one of whom, Billy, owned all of what is now Harwood and farmed the land.

Miss Elizabeth Kyne's grandfather's brother (on her mother's side) was Clement Worms who owned property south of the present house. It is noted on the 1878 Hopkin's Atlas. He ran a boot and shoe store. This structure caught fire, burned down and has since been rebuilt.

During the civil war Miss Kyne's grandmother, Margaret Worms roasted coffee for the Union soldiers who camped on Hall's Hill, west of present Route I, who guarded Thomas Viaduct and Route I.

The first Kyne to arrive in America is buried in the Carrol Grave Yard at Doughoregan Manor. His wife and children are in St. Augustine's cemetery.

Miss Elizabeth Kyne's grandmother, Julia Costalay, and Patrick Kyne owned what is now called Elkridge Heights. She sold it for $1100 to send her boys to Rock Hill College in Ellicott City.

In 1888 Mis Kyne's father and mother were married after a thirteen year courtship. Twelve years later he died and Mrs. Kyne carried on by managing a confectionery and grocery store in the present building on Main Street.

Representative of the hard working, industrious people who settled in Elkridge near the hustle and bustle of the Landing, the Kyne's are important to county and state history. Initially three men in the family came to America in the early 1800's. They worked hard, acquired land and built businesses which helped carry on the commercial and farm life of Elkridge, raising God-fearing, educated, industrious citizens for Howard County and Maryland.

Architecturally the store front has been altered to accommodate the large first floor living room windows. The effect, however, is a pleasing one and blends in scale and texture with the other buildings on Main Street, helping to create an integrated architecturally pleasing streetscape.

For these reasons, The Kyne Store, in conjunction with the Main Street, Elkridge Historic District, should be placed on the National Register of Historic Places, should its owners so desire.
